

Lori Mendoza

Audio clip transcript:

“When they sent out the call to all employees, I said, wow. This is really great. And being down there, and actually feeling like, me—one person—I was able to help, and the contribution I was making toward the effort made me very proud. Every person, no matter what job you were doing down there, was contributing...huge... to the effort. I just think it’s the camaraderie that we developed down there—you have people from all over the country, people from Alaska, people you would never meet in your normal working environment, and we were all in this situation together, working together. Everyone down there had the passion, really wanted to help, and had the love of the animals, and just their job. And the passion they had for their job was so evident down there.”